STHLET MARKET IS BEING CONSIDERED

Commissioners Wells and Morris Differ Slightly in the Matter.

By way of opposition to the proposal to grant the Growers' exchange permission to conduct a street market on Sec ond West street, Heber M. Wells, park commissioner, will introduce an ordinance next Tuesday night providing for a street market, under municipal control, until such time as the city may establish a public municipal market

under roof.

At the same meeting Richard P. Morris will introduce a motion granting permission to the Growers' exchange and with no mention of municipal control other than the customary regulations. Mr. Wells is of the opinion that to grant such permission would place the market in the hands of the middle men and not bring the consumer and producer into direct contact, as he thinks they should be, to bring best results to both consumer and farmer.

The ordinance to be introduced by Mr. Wells will provide for the appointment of a city market master, or the delegation of some present official to the work. This market master will supervise the public market, maintain order, see that everyone is fairly treated and generally be in charge. He proposes to have an inspector under the meat and food division of the board of health assigned to the work.

The idea is to give farmers free space on the market, but to charge local dealers, who desire to buy and sell on the market, a fee for the privilence.

GLUCOSE IS FOOD. SAYS THE CHEMIST

That Which Goes Into Candy Is Made of Corn and Is Declared Healthful.

The pure food department is up in arms egarding a newspaper article which appeared on the morning of February 18, in which it is implied that glucose is unhealthful and that products, such as candy, made from glucose, are not fit to eat. Herman Harms, state chemist, and Heber C. Smith, chief deputy of the state dairy and food department, both assert that glucose used in candy and other products is healthful and that the im-pression given by the published report that glucose is made from old rags is that glucose is made from the corrections.

Fair co-eds of the Latter-day Saints university may lift the bain on cheap candy, caused by the reported experiment of Prof. J. C. Thomas, and eat glucose candy to their little hearts' content. This assurance was given by Hebor C. Smith lafter an opinion concerning the manufacture of glucose had been given by the state chemist. Discussing glucose, Chemist Harms said:

Glucose is now recognized as one of the purest foods produced, and a statement that it is made from old rags is harmful and can only do harm to the producers of food products. All glucose used in making candy is now produced from corn starch. While it could be made from eggs.

the idea that the commercial product is made in that way is absurd, for that would be too expensive, even if such a thing were to be attempted under present government and state supervision. Not only is glucose produced in a sunitary manner, but it is absolutely necessary for the system. Many foods contain sugar, and this is changed by the digestive fluids of the stomach to glucose behavior it can be absorbed. This makes glucose very healthful.
